Narrow Escape

Dr. and Mrs. H. N. Heal, while motoring to Calgary Sunday evening, were fortunate in escaping injuries, when their car plunged into a truck which was stalled on the highway. According to information received, the truck, bearing no lights was stalled in the centre of the highway, over a hill, with the driver, who was frantically waving, on one side of the road and an irrigation ditch on the other. Dr. Heal had but one choice and he took it, damaging his car considerably. Dr. and Mrs. Heal proceeded to Calgary, returning to their home in Vulcan on Monday.

C.G.I.T. Girls

Holds First Meeting

The first meeting of the C. G. I. T. this year was held on Friday evening in the United Church, under the leadership of Miss Jean Anderson. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Eva Lottif; secretary, Miss Phyllis Chamberlain; treasurer Miss Pauline Fisher. Plans for a play were discussed and work on costumes commenced.

Balzac Boy Reaps Variable Barley Crop

A Balzac boy, Fred Pichet, member of the Balzac Barley Club, has reason to be proud of his accomplishments in raising barley, and has incidentally reaped a rich harvest from his efforts this year. In 1933 he received through his junior club nine bushels of O. A. C. Barley, from which he reaped sufficient seed to plant over 100 acres this spring. This season he harvested 2,500 bushels of the crop, for which he received 74 1/2 cents a bushel, a net return of almost $2,000.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Ladies' of the Garden Prairie W. I. have extended an cordial invitation to the members of Champion W. I. to visit with them on Oct. 3rd, Wednesday afternoon in the United Church. Will the Champion members wishing to go, kindly tell the secretary so that she can let the Garden Prairie women know how many to expect.

Local Boys' Have Close Call

While returning from Calgary, where they had spent the week end, Walter Reicher, Clyde Coe, G. K. McLean and S. Anderson narrowly escaped being seriously injured, when the car which belonged to W. Reicher, turned over in a ditch five miles north of High River. In turning over the vacuum tank of the car was damaged and it immediately burst into flames. The boys made an opening in the top of the car and escaped without receiving any injuries. The car was completely destroyed by fire.

The Provincial government received payment of $453,425 from the Alberta Wheat Pool, this being the annual instalment of principal and interest due this month on account of the 1929 Pool overpayment. The pool is living up to its obligations with the government in a creditable manner.

A FURTHER STEP on the Road to Recovery

A Statement by the Prime Minister of Canada

THE Dominion of Canada will offer for public subscription within the next few days the 1934 Refunding Loan. It is an undertaking of such significance to every citizen that I think it fitting to present this brief explanation of its close relation to the welfare and continued progress of our country.

The 1934 Loan is not an incidental effort. It is a part—and an essential part—of the great debt conversion programme in which Canada has been engaged since 1931, and by which we are refunding at maturity the large sums borrowed for wartime purposes. The national importance of this programme—and of the 1934 Loan as part of it—cannot be over emphasized. It is important from three aspects: 1—National Credit; 2—National Economy; 3—National Recovery. I shall deal with each of these in turn.

1. National Credit

National credit means to a nation what an honest reputation means to a man. Its maintenance is a primary essential and necessitates that each obligation be met, fully and promptly, as it comes due. Our debt conversion programme is then, in the first instance, our method of meeting our obligations and thus maintaining our credit.

If this programme Canada has already refunded $43,000,000 of wartime debt, and completion of the 1934 Loan will bring the refunded total to over $1 billion dollars. As a result, Canada's credit stands notably high, both at home and in the great money markets of the world.

Striking evidence of our high credit standing was given within the last few months when Canada secured immediate over-subscription of a long-term loan in London at a price to yield the investor less than 3 1/2% and, in New York, obtained a one-year Loan of $25,000,000 bearing interest at 2 per cent. And there is equally striking evidence at the present moment in the fact that every internal issue of Dominion of Canada Bonds now outstanding is selling today at substantially above its issue price. The twelve-year 4% Bonds of the 1933 Refunding Loan, issued at 96 1/4, are now selling at 104 to yield approximately 3 1/2%.

2. National Economy

The debt conversion programme, in the second place, is providing substantial savings in public interest charges. The debt which we are refunding was incurred with interest rates at artificially high wartime peaks. Refunding is now being accomplished with interest rates throughout the world moving steadily downward toward more normal levels—an encouraging world movement which is essential to business recovery. By refunding under these conditions Canada has already obtained a reduction of the previous interest charges amounting to more than $9,000,000 per annum, and completion of the 1934 Loan will provide a further saving of over $5,000,000 per annum.

The annual saving of over $14,000,000 thus secured has a direct cash benefit to every tax-payer. This saving has much more than offset the interest charges on the debt which has been incurred to meet the extraordinary burden of unemployment relief. It has, to a considerable extent, offset the heavy burden which the depression period has imposed with respect to railway and other current requirements. It will also give the way to tax reductions with the return to better times.

3. National Recovery

The debt conversion which Canada has achieved since 1931, by thus maintaining national credit and securing national economy, has been a major factor in our progress toward business recovery.

A year ago, preliminary to the 1933 Refunding Loan, I took occasion to express the belief that Canada had passed the low point of depression and was definitely upon the road to recovery. Today, our progress toward recovery is a matter of established fact. Since the low point of February 1933, the trend of business has been moving steadily upward in improvement so marked and so consistently sustained that we need no longer doubt its reality.

The facts of business recovery are written beyond dispute in our statistical records. The most significant indices relate to physical volume of business, industrial production, carloadings, electric power production, employment and prices. Here is the record in each case:

	Deficit	Surge Low Point of Depression	February 1933
Physical volume of business.....	13.8%	42.8%	56.9%
Industrial Production.....	15.7%	29.4%	45.5%
Carloadings.....	10.3%	29.4%	45.5%
Electric Power Production.....	12.4%	32.7%	45.5%
Employment.....	14.7%	17.1%	33.7%
Wholesale Prices.....	4.0%	13.7%	33.7%
Far Products Prices.....	7.7%	13.7%	33.7%

*By the case of carloadings, employment and prices, the latest figures available are those for August; in other cases, those for July.

Our external trade figures are equally encouraging. During the first eight months of the present year, exports of Canadian products increased approximately $99,000,000, or 32.7% over the same period last year. The corresponding increase for imports has been slightly under $23,000,000, or 38.2%.

A Further Step

Anyone who reflects upon these three aspects of credit, economy and recovery will at once appreciate that the debt conversion programme is vitally important to every Canadian and that, consequently, the success of the 1934 Loan is the personal concern of every man and woman in the Dominion.

The 1934 Loan is a further step in a great national undertaking; its success means a further step on the road to recovery. I know that I need not stress the attractiveness of the Loan as the soundest possible investment, for that will be universally recognized. I do, however, earnestly call upon my fellow Canadians to support this Loan to the limit of their abilities as an opportunity to promote our national welfare. I know of no way in which the individual citizen can render greater service to himself and to his country.

Is This Real Sport?

The international yacht race for the America Cup between the British challenger "Enaevour" and the United States defender "Rainbow" is the subject of innumerable newspaper and magazine articles reviewing the history of this famous cup and setting forth facts and figures indicating the vast expenditure of money and effort on the part of the multi-millionaires who alone can afford to indulge in this sport. This yacht race is not a money-making venture on the part of those who engage in it, quite the reverse. No gate admission can be charged, and the spectacle is free to all those who can get within sight of it.

But the cost of building even one of these yachts and financing it during the trial races and the short race period runs well over a million dollars, and with several boats involved, the actual total cost is staggering. Is it all worth while? Are such huge expenditures of money for such a purpose pure waste? Are such huge expenditures of money for such a purpose pure waste? Are such huge expenditures of money for such a purpose pure waste?

What is real sport? What, or should be, its aim and object? Real sport, if we understand it right, should provide recreation from the everyday toils and worries of life, and it should, therefore, be engaged in, not by a select few, but by the masses. Secondly, its aim should be the development of the physical well-being of all who engage in it, coupled with the incitement and development of those traits of character which recognize and instill upon fairplay, respect for a competitor, observance of the rules of the game whatever it may be, acceptance of defeat with good grace and a smile, and of victory with a becoming modesty.

If this is a correct definition of real sport, then it should never become a mere money-making enterprise in any of its branches. As a matter of fact, when it develops into a money-making enterprise it ceases to be sport in its true sense and becomes a business with gate receipts and salaries the main objective, while all the principles underlying real sport are sacrificed to skill.

Unfortunately, much of the so-called sport of to-day has degenerated from the ideal of amateurism to professionalism; from love of the game to love of the dollars that may be earned. It is no longer sport or recreation, but a cold, competitive business.

This has long been the case in the United States. Tens of thousands of people pack the stands to watch highly trained experts "play" ball. These thousands cheer themselves hoarse for the "home" team, although not one of the "players" may be a native son or even a resident of the home city, but imported men from anywhere simply because they have the knack to excel in a certain position on the baseball diamond. Such is the great national game of the United States; but it is not sport. It is nothing but a business highly organized to the nth degree to make money for the owners of the franchises and their high-salaried ball-playing employees. Instead of the thousands of spectators being benefited physically or otherwise, the reverse is true; they ought to be actively participating during these hours of the franchise, giving no thought to recreation.

In its heyday, lacrosse, the old national game of Canada, was an amateur sport. Thousands of boys engaged in it for the love of the game and the exercise they obtained. Professionalism crept in, and Canada's national game died. Canada's great winter game, ice hockey, is traveling the same road, thanks to the adoption of the game by the United States and the invasion of the so-called sport magnates with their offers of large salaries to expert hockey players. Professionalism makes inroads into football, golf, tennis. Only a few games, curling, for instance, remain free of the taint.

What and who are responsible for this deterioration? First, the money grabbing instinct of men. Secondly, universities and colleges to a considerable extent. Large universities pay extravagant salaries to so-called sports managers and trainers, not for the purpose of developing the physical well-being of all members of their student bodies, but to build up a championship crew or team in the various departments of sport to carry the college colors to victory and advertise the university and command the admiration and ultimate enrolment of youth from all over the country. It is no longer sport in its true sense, but a business proposition with such institutions.

With but few exceptions, people love sports. Practically every child likes to play games. It is a natural born instinct, and it has its place, and a big place, in the physical, mental and moral development of youth. But it is being perverted to gross material ends, with the result that sport in its true sense is largely lacking in the larger centres of population, and we must go to the small towns, villages and rural communities to find games and sporting events engaged in by the masses for the intrinsic love and joy of the game. Sport in its true sense and meaning should be strongly encouraged everywhere, but it is a time halt was called to professionalism in sport, and to its twin evil of making profession in any one branch of it the end-all of one's existence.

Planes Equipped For Toning Up

Bliss the Instructor. Ultra-violet rays have become standard equipment on aeroplanes engaged in night flying.

Pilots found that the radiant dials of the instruments and gauges became dull unless irradiated occasionally. So ultra-violet rays were installed. The boxes, not much larger than safety match holders, are fastened to the steering post near the pilot's feet. Since ultra-violet rays are invisible there is no reflection against the windshield when the pilots use them.

Price Assisted Miners

Wanted Royalties Until Mine On Estate Was Self-Supporting

The Prince of Wales went down a Somerset coal mine that came to life close to the spot where a coal mine had died.

There is a human story behind this "dead" coal field for an old one. The prince heard it from one of the doughty West of England colliers who conducted him round the mine.

Thirteen years ago a coal mine at Farrington Gurney closed down. Three hundred men were thrown out of work on the life and fore to go on the "dole".

Three years later, determined to make work for themselves, a small band of them applied to the Prince of Wales for a concession to dig close to the dead coal field. It lay in the prince's duty to assent.

The prince lent a sympathetic ear to the colliers' plea. He told them the duchy would waive any royalties until the mine was self-supporting.

The men set to work. After deep excavating they struck coal. Every now and again the prince inquired how the mine was working.

Now the mine is paying for itself. Fifty men are in full-time employment. One hundred and thirty-two tons of household coal are raised every week. And the Duchy of Cornwall is receiving its dues.

The prince received a royal warrant from the black-faced colliers. Then he disappeared half a mile under the ground for a quarter of an hour and watched the men dig for coal. He reappeared, his hands black from the low corridors where he had been almost blind.

DOUBLED UP WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his friends declared he would never again. Although he was not old, he proved they were wrong. Read what he says—

"I am seventy years of age. Last Christmas I was completely doubled up with rheumatism. I could not brush my hair nor wash myself. People said I might never walk any more. I am feeling better than I was young man to-day. Thank you, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to many. I could not sit or get out of bed myself, nor eat. But see me now—12 hours a day some of the time. I have been doing it—G. J."

These conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel the uric acid crystals through the natural channel. In addition, there are still other salts in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which help to break up the uric acid crystals in the intrinsics, and thereby check the further accumulation not only of uric acid, but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

Preparing For Trip

Duke Of Gloucester Studied Books On Australia

A tall, fresh-complexioned, well-toasted young man in brown suit hat and brown shoes was exploring an Oxford-street book shop in a recent week.

He had found his way to a large collection of books, some old but most of them recent, dealing with every phase of life in the British Empire. From the way he went about the collection, with one of the assistants, studying maps and pictures of certain countries, it was clear that he was either a student or a traveller preparing to go on a long voyage—or both. As a matter of fact he was both. It was the Duke of Gloucester. Evidently he was making a careful selection of books to prepare himself for the long journey to Australia.

In the three Prairie Provinces on August 1, 1934, the estimated acreage showed a decrease of 1,841,000 acres, or 7.5 per cent. in wheat; a decrease of 70,000 acres or 2.3 per cent. in barley; a decrease of 1,000 acres, or 0.1 per cent. in flaxseed; 17,500 acres, or 7.4 per cent. in oats; increased by 170,000 acres or 1.9 per cent. and rye also increased by 10,000 acres, or 28.7 per cent.

Difficult To Replace

Substitution of other forms of revenue for the tariff as a source of national income would be difficult in Canada. Hon. George H. Sedgewick, chairman of Canada's tariff board, declared before the maritime conference on Canadian affairs held at Halifax.

A tax of about 10 cents a gallon is levied on gasoline in England.

Air Survey Reveals Ruins

Ancient Earthworks Sunk For Centuries Were Invisible From Ground

A moundbuilders' ceremonial chapel and an ancient roadway, approximately two and one-half miles long, were discovered for the first time near Newark, Ohio following completion of an aerial survey by Captain A. W. Stevens, interspersed army photographer and participant in the recent ill-fated attempt to invade the atmosphere.

The discovery was made by Dr. Henry C. Shetrone, archaeologist and director of the Ohio State Museum while examining air photographs taken by Capt. Stevens at museum offices in Columbus, Ohio.

Invisible from the ground, these once mighty ancient earthworks, believed constructed by Hopewell Indians, have lain hidden for centuries unnoticed by residents of this vicinity.

The roadway, which is 150 feet wide, is of perfect geometric proportions and indicates that people of the Hopewell era had some knowledge of that mathematical science, museum officials believe.

A keyhole-shaped figure on the air photo, the circular, Indian line at the road's southwest termination, is approximately 200 feet in diameter at its circular part and is believed to have been a ceremonial circle of the Hopewell tribes.

Located between two perfectly protected circles, Indian line at the southwest of the city, the territory in which the new discoveries were made has long been a mecca for archaeologists and tourists.

Tunnels and elaborate underground burial rooms similar to those found in the world famous Ogden Mounds near Lewiston, Ill., also products of Hopewell culture, might be found as a result of the new discovery Shetrone believes.

First research of the Newark Indian burial grounds was made in 1848 by Squire and Davis, early archaeological explorers Ohio and the Middle West.

Although they indicated the beginning of the roadway in maps filed with the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, no further trace of the earthworks had been discovered until the discovery of Captain Stevens, museum officials say.

When Duties Are Divided Work Is Very Seldom Done As It Should Be

Attairs at the French ministry of finance, where the windows are never clean because the cleaners have just discovered, the ministry of finance is responsible for the inside and the two ministries never arrange to clean both sides at once, had an almost exact parallel near home in the Victorian days when the prince consort began inquiring into arrangements at Buckingham Palace, which he found far from satisfactory, he was informed that the lord chamberlain had charge of all the interior rooms except the kitchens and pantries, which were under the lord steward, while the exterior came under the office of walled and forests, and that they likewise failed to synch in cleaning the windows. On demanding why there was never a fire in the dining room, he was told "the lord chamberlain lays the fire, and the lord steward lights it." As the underlings of those days the great officers were in disagreement the queen was left to dine in the cold Manchester Guardian.

Need Coin-Container Philatelists Sending Money Through Mail Use Variety Of "Stickum"

A crew of 15 postal clerks at Yellowstone Park, Wyoming, which handled the 10,000 requests for first-day covers on the new Yellowstone stamp issued recently, wonder why someone has not invented a special coin-container for philatelists. Collectors sending in five, ten, twenty-five, and fifty-cent pieces used every conceivable method in making the cash envelope for the envelopes which they wanted to carry the new stamp as well as the cancellation mark from the collector's post-office on the first-day covers. Tar, adhesive tape, mauls, wax, honey, chewing gum and styrap were among the varieties of "stickum" used.

The clerks all exhibited nose thumbs and fingers from licking for the well-protected cash.

Even Ivy Took To Melbourne With Explorer's Cottage

Packed in 253 boxes and transported by 35 lorries, Captain Cook's cottage was taken through the streets of Melbourne, Australia, on its arrival by the steamer to the Fitzroy Gardens, where it is to be re-erected in connection with the centenary celebrations.

Everything about the Y-rabbit cottage has been preserved with amazing thoroughness, even to the creak on the staircase, as no wit remarked. Stones for the walls, flagstones for the floor, joints rafters and beams have all been marked and numbered.

A log has been forwarded containing the original mortar, which held brick and stone together, also a bag of nails which will not be much use for hammering in, but interesting as showing the type used.

The ivy alone will not be retained in its original state. The puritanical authorities demand that it be fumigated, as a potential bearer of diseases. In exchange for the cottage, Cook's shipwreck, the "Endeavour," is to be placed in a stone obelisk modelled on the monument commemorating his discovery of Cape Byron.

Full ripe in Canada, as at August 10, 1934, shows a yield of 5,239,000 bushels from 287,100 acres compared with 3,454,000 bushels from 143,490 acres in 1933.

Lignite Coal

Development Of Coal Field In Saskatchewan Carried On Successfully

Development of high moisture lignite deposits in southern Saskatchewan, which are located a considerable distance to the east of other fuel sources of Western Canada, has been carried on successfully throughout the depression years. R. L. Rutland, consulting engineer for the Saskatchewan Coal Operators' Association, told the western meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy at Calgary.

"The increase in production in the Saskatchewan field and use in recent years when the general trend of production has been downward," he said, "has been due in part to economic conditions and in part to improved preparation at the mines."

The more densely populated sections of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, he said, offered a wide market for the southern Saskatchewan fuel.

Roman coins were minted in the temple of Juno.

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

(Now to Go With The Story)

"What seems to be the trouble? Keene's tone was anxious.

"Exactly what I asked old Ben. He said that as far as he can see there are two reasons. Carr is mighty old fashioned, . . . and the Broken Spur is next to him."

"Well, what of it? These days some one's got to be next door."

"Huh. You're damned lucky for the man I know you to be. I suppose you never heard of rustlin'?"

"That's archaic," said Keene sharply. "Men don't rustle these days."

"Think so? Wait a bit! Old man Carr is always short of cash. He has to hire his men just for five times he needs 'em. He's got only about four or five men permanently on his payroll. That means that poverty keeps him from buildin' up the ranch, or waddles he could count on to charge hell with a cup o' water if the Hour-glass needed it. He's honest, too, and that's a handicap when he lives next to the Broken Spur. For years Dustin and Goddard have been tryin' to, by a lawsuit, to get the ranch, but that makes the Hour-glass valuable. Can't you see what happens? Old man Carr, crippled, is being robbed deaf, dumb and blind to make him sell his place."

"But he can only sell his share. Half of the place is mine."

"Well then . . . Stone bawled himself erect in his chair. . . . 'It looks to me as if one Gerald Keene, before long, will find himself partner to two crooks. If old man Carr is right. Don't you see? Old man Carr will have to sell his half of the Hour-glass to these men Dustin and Goddard to stand square with the world. . . ."

"Does your friend Lyon say these men Dustin and Goddard are two crooks?"

"He didn't have to say so. He said he couldn't understand 'em. Old Ben is so straight that the only man he doesn't understand is a crook. Why?"

"Well . . . I told old man Thurwell I was 'goin' to run down the Hour-glass."

Hour-glass or the Broken Spur, you wire for one Gerald Keene. That's me! I'll help you save the hen of the nest."

"Wait. . . . Keene came back from the closet with a bottle and glasses. 'Here's the health of Keene and Stone. . . . I'll wire if I need you.'"

"And when I hear," said Duro Stone, left behind. "I'll sure come a-runnin'."

"You may need to," said Keene soberly. "I hope not but I'm afraid."

"All right. Old Timer. To the health of the new Duro Stone."

CHAPTER II.

"There he comes now! That's old Dad Kane as sure as a shootin'!"

Sam Dustin, half-owner of the Broken Spur ranch, jerked a finger to the west and Spike Goddard, his partner, rose slowly and squinted into the dust-haze of the range.

"You're a damned fool ever to have grubstaked that old fool Dad Kane," he said explosively. "It's all your doin', too. Three hundred dollars plumb throwed away."

His words carried a sting. They were meant to do just that. Everything that Spike Goddard said or did carried a sting. His red face; his cold blue eyes, his wife-stiff reddish beard all bespoke combative and Dustin felt that sting. He knew that silence under the whip-lash of his tongue would annoy Spike more than any speech.

Dustin and Goddard had owned the Broken Spur for several years and all Crevasse County wondered how they made it pay. They did make money was clear but none knew how they did it. Old Sam Peters, the decrepit old cashier at the bank in Secco, could have told them but there were good reasons why Peters should tell nothing that affected his own bank.

"If you'd told me three years ago that they were aimin' to grubstake old Shanny Skin Kane," said Goddard, I'd have said it was the ac of a damn fool."

"I know. An' then you stopp'd me from takin' up the Bar. Crevasse range lease for years," snarled Dustin. "That cost us over ten thousand. All because you were scared to take a chance."

This time Spike flushed. A man does not care to be reminded of his tinorous moments that cost him money. He stood by his partner, scowling off into the sunset. Joint owners of the Broken Spur, they were as different as black is from red. Sam Dustin's tall little figure, his dark, handsome face, his flawless teeth made a perfect foil for his partner, who stood by him like a giant of the Secco County said: "As red as a fox and twice as shifty. I wouldn't trust the pair 'em."

"You're on, I can't. But I'll go as a tenderfoot. I'll take a letter of introduction to old man Carr. I'll be Duro Stone lookin' for a job to learn a new cow business. You know every druggist in the East is turnin' out amateur cow-punchers. I'll be one."

"Know the type. Druggist cow-punchers! Nickel plated gun an' beakskin chairs! Bought straight from the store. You know every druggist in the East is turnin' out amateur cow-punchers. I'll be one."

Laws Of Physics

Intimate Point Is Settled At The University Of Saskatchewan

Laws of physics as operating in the court of Magistrate J. B. McDougall, at Sudbury, Ontario, have no validity in Saskatchewan.

In the physics laboratory at the University of Saskatchewan, two suspended wooden balls of equal weight. When one ball swinging slowly is struck by another swinging rapidly in the other direction, it is the slowly-moving ball that bounces back while the one previously in rapid motion becomes almost motionless.

An authority on physics points out that if two bodies of differing momentum (weight multiplied by velocity) meet, the resultant momentum will be the same in direction as that of the major force. The majority carries.

Little Helps For This Week

"Let I pray Thee loving kindness be for my comfort, according to Thy word unto Thy servant." Psalm 119:76.

Love divine has seen and counted every hair it caused to fall. And the storm which Love appointed.

Was its choicest gift of all. O that thou couldst dwell in the knowledge and sense of this, that the Lord bestows this suffering with an eye of pity, and is able not only to uphold thee under them, but also to do thee good by them. Therefore grieve not at thy lot, be not discontented, look not at the hardness of thy condition, but when the storms of vocation are sharp look up to Him who can give meekness and patience, can lift up thy head over all, and can cause thy life to grow and be a gain by all. If the Lord God help thee according to thy condition of affliction and distress thou wilt have as much to complain, but will bless His name.—A. Pennington.

A Big Change

Lord Willington went from Croydon to Delhi in a week. So much has air travel accomplished. When the first Viceroy, Canning, went to his duties in 1858 the trip took more than five weeks. Steamships were slow, and there being no Suez Canal the way was round the Cape.

AIR-CELL BRINGS AN ENTIRELY NEW THRILL IN RADIO

TO HOMES NOT HAVING ELECTRICITY!

"I heard the big ball game this afternoon, Jim—came in clear as a bell. Now, we haven't electricity in our house, but we have the new Air-Cell. It's a real electric set down in the house."

"I used to get into town every time our storage battery ran down. Now, I never need recharging. I don't mind leaving home, then, because our Air-Cell set brings in programs we never heard clearly before."

"That new Air-Cell radio is a wonder, lad. I've never heard of it. Our old storage battery was a real nuisance, and so I don't half the time we couldn't get the music and news. This new set has such an even current that you can hear perfectly all the time."

The invention of the EVEREADY Air-Cell "A" Battery has made possible the entire different battery-powered radio that gives the glorious full tone hitherto only heard in electric sets.

The EVEREADY Air-Cell "A" Battery lasts for at least 100 hours, which at 2 hours a day is almost a year's service in the average household, and so does away entirely with the annoyance, expense and loss of time due to frequent recharging.

Used in conjunction with EVEREADY favorite "B" Battery, the EVEREADY Air-Cell, made by the leading radio set manufacturers, will perform with all the simplicity and reliability of any electric set.
